Englische King James Version von 1611/1769 mit Strongs

1 Moreover take thou up^{H5375} a lamentation^{H7015} for the princes^{H5387} of Israel^{H3478}, 2 And say^{H559}, What is thy mother^{H517}? A lioness^{H3833}: she lay down^{H7257} among lions^{H738}, she nourished^{H7235} her whelps^{H1482} among^{H8432} young lions^{H3715}. 3 And she brought up^{H5927} one^{H259} of her whelps^{H1482}: it became a young lion^{H3715}, and it learned^{H3925} to catch^{H2963} the prey^{H2964}; it devoured^{H398} men^{H120}. 4 The nations^{H1471} also heard^{H8085} of him; he was taken^{H8610} in their pit^{H7845}, and they brought^{H935} him with chains^{H2397} unto the land^{H776} of Egypt^{H4714}. 5 Now when she saw^{H7200} that she had waited^{H3176}, and her hope^{H8615} was lost^{H6}, then she took^{H3947} another^{H259} of her whelps^{H1482}, and made^{H7760} him a young lion^{H3715}. 6 And he went up and down^{H1980} among^{H8432} the lions^{H738}, he became a young lion^{H3715}, and learned^{H3925} to catch^{H2963} the prey^{H2964}, and devoured^{H398} men^{H120}. 7 And he knew^{H3045} their desolate palaces^{H490}, and he laid waste^{H2717} their cities^{H5892}; and the land^{H776} was desolate^{H3456}, and the fulness^{H4393} thereof, by the noise^{H6963} of his roaring^{H7581}. 8 Then the nations^{H1471} set^{H5414} against him on every side^{H5439} from the provinces^{H4082}, and spread^{H6566} their net^{H7568} over him: he was taken^{H8610} in their pit^{H7845}. 9 And they put^{H5414} him in ward^{H5474} in chains^{H2397}, and brought^{H935} him to the king^{H4428} of Babylon^{H894}: they brought^{H935} him into holds^{H4685}, that his voice^{H6963} should no more be heard^{H8085} upon the mountains^{H2022} of Israel^{H3478}. 3

10 Thy mother^{H517} is like a vine^{H1612} in thy blood^{H1818 H1818}, planted^{H8362} by the waters^{H4325}: she was fruitful^{H6509} and full of branches^{H6058} by reason of many^{H7227} waters^{H4325}. 11 And she had strong^{H5797} rods^{H4294} for the sceptres^{H7626} of them that bare rule^{H4910}, and her stature^{H6967} was exalted^{H1361} among the thick branches^{H5688}, and she appeared^{H7200} in her height^{H1363} with the multitude^{H7230} of her branches^{H1808}. 12 But she was plucked up^{H5428} in fury^{H2534}, she was cast down^{H7993} to the ground^{H776}, and the east^{H6921} wind^{H7307} dried up^{H3001} her fruit^{H6529}: her strong^{H5797} rods^{H4294} were broken^{H6561} and withered^{H3001}; the fire^{H784} consumed^{H398} them. 13 And now she is planted^{H8362} in the wilderness^{H4057}, in a dry^{H6723} and thirsty^{H6772} ground^{H776}. 14 And fire^{H784} is gone out^{H3318} of a rod^{H4294} of her branches^{H905}, which hath devoured^{H398} her fruit^{H6529}, so that she hath no strong^{H5797} rod^{H4294} to be a sceptre^{H7626} to rule^{H4910}. This is a lamentation^{H7015}, and shall be for a lamentation^{H7015}.
